WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Fuel & Petrochemical Manufacturers (AFPM) President and CEO Chet Thompson issued the following statement on EPA's decision to reallocate 2025 RFS regulatory relief:

> "Reallocation is unlawful and serves one purpose: making an historically expensive Renewable Fuel Standard even more expensive. Rather than addressing the real challenges facing the program, EPA has chosen to shift billions of dollars in additional compliance costs onto other refiners and fuel manufacturers. Those costs do not disappear. They ripple throughout the economy as consumers pay more at the pump and businesses pay more to move goods.
>
> "Americans need policies that promote affordability, reliability and energy security. Reallocation does the opposite."

Print as PDF:

Media Contact:

Ericka Perryman

media@afpm.org

202.457.0480

About AFPM:

The American Fuel & Petrochemical Manufacturers (AFPM) is the leading trade association representing the makers of the fuels that keep us moving, the petrochemicals that are the essential building blocks for modern life, and the midstream companies that get our feedstocks and products where they need to go. We make the products that make life better, safer and more sustainable — we make progress.

Topics

Fuel Products

Fuel Policy