

AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Program Copyright and Reproduction Policy (“Policy”)

This publication is protected under copyright law, and your use and reproduction of this publication and the data contained herein are governed by the following terms of use and any additional terms and conditions set forth in your Subscription Form & Contract. Except as specifically permitted in this Policy, this publication “AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports”,¹ may not be reproduced or transmitted in any form, or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopy, recording, or any information storage and retrieval system either directly or indirectly or in whole or in part (“Reproduce” or “Reproduced”) without the express written consent of AFPM. By signing this document, subscribers agree to comply with the following terms of use.

Regular Subscribers:

A Regular Subscriber receives the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports under the following conditions:

- AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports may not be Reproduced or referenced outside the subscribing organization without the express written consent of AFPM.
- The data and any analysis of the data contained in the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports is intended solely for the internal use of the Regular Subscriber and its designated employees and may not be Reproduced or referenced outside the Regular Subscriber’s organization without the express written consent of AFPM.
- Sharing the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports and the data contained in the reports with affiliated companies is allowed only if the Regular Subscriber has a greater than 50 percent ownership interest in the affiliate with which the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports or embedded data will be shared, and where the Regular Subscriber guarantees and ensures the affiliate is bound by this Policy as well.
- If written consent has been provided by AFPM and the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports or data contained in the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports is referenced, AFPM must be cited as the source of the data or information. The following language must appear on each page of the document where the data is referenced: “Reproduced with permission from the American Fuel & Petrochemical Manufacturers. ©2023. All Rights Reserved.”
- Regular Subscribers who are also producers of a petrochemical that is reported through the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Program must report production and inventory data on those petrochemicals as part of the terms of this Subscription Form and Contract.

Publishing Subscribers:

Publishing subscribers receive the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports under the following conditions:

- Any party who wishes to reproduce or reference, either directly or indirectly, the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports or data therein or their own analysis of the data as part of another publication may do so only by becoming and remaining an AFPM Statistics Publishing Subscriber in good standing.
- Publishing Subscribers may reproduce or reference either directly or indirectly, the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports or data therein or their own analysis of the data. Publishing Subscribers are prohibited from publishing complete sets of raw data or figures and tables as they appear in AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports. Publishing Subscribers acknowledge that any unauthorized use of the content would infringe on AFPM’s intellectual property rights. AFPM grants limited permissions to Publishing Subscribers to “Reproduce” the following:
 - Graphs, tables, or figures derived from portions of the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports or selected data.
 - Unique data sets derived from AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports.
 - Graphs, tables, or figures resulting from the Publishing Subscribers’ own analysis of the reports and data.

Publishing Subscribers with questions regarding acceptable use under this agreement should reach out to AFPM at rsabijon@afpm.org.

- In these and all other cases where AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports or data from the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports is Reproduced or referenced, AFPM must be cited as the source of the data or information. The following language must appear on each page of the document where the data is referenced: “Reproduced with permission from the American Fuel & Petrochemical Manufacturers. ©2023. All Rights Reserved.”

¹ The “AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Reports” is comprised of the collection of production and inventory statistics, including trade data for selected petrochemicals and derivatives.

- Only the subscribing entity that is recognized by AFPM as an AFPM Statistics Publishing Subscriber in good standing has the rights granted under this section. Affiliated entities are NOT entitled to these same rights provided by this subscription.
- It is the Publishing Subscribers' responsibility to communicate with their clients that they don't have rights to re-publish or sell the AFPM reports or data and that the reports and data are protected by copyright.
- Subscribers with publishing rights who are also producers of a petrochemical that is reported through the AFPM Petrochemical Statistics Program, must report production and inventory data on those petrochemicals as part of the terms of this agreement.

Failure to Comply with This Policy

For questions on proper data use and publication, please consult AFPM at rsabijon@afpm.org. The parties agree that these provisions are material terms of this Subscription Form and Contract, and violating this Policy would cause AFPM irreparable harm for which AFPM is entitled to injunctive relief and other legal action, including but not limited to the following: terminating this Subscription Form and Contract, suspending Reproduction privileges, canceling the subscription service, and referring Subscribers to the AFPM President for action concerning AFPM membership privileges.

Updated: November 2, 2022

Signature: _____ Date: _____